Vol. 1 Lourdes Carvajal

THE COLLECTION

This collection is about empowering your inner super hero, anti hero or alter ego. This collection inspired by the fashions of famous comic book characters from the DC comics Black Canary, Poison Ivy and Cat Woman specifically. As you'll see throughout the garments direct details from their wardrobe such as leather, chains, fish nets and corsets will be referenced in the new designs. The goal of this collection is to have the person wearing these pieces to feel sexy, feminine, fearless, and confident wherever and however they choose to wear them. Unleash your inner bad ass!

THE MUSES

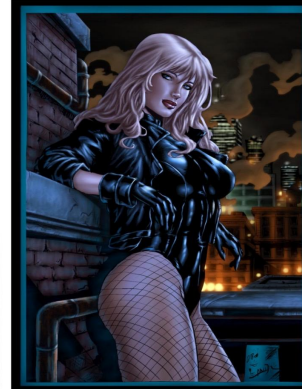

Cat woman

Catwoman originally appeared in 1940 in the first issue of DC Comics' Batman as "The Cat", the alter ego of Selina Kyle, a whip carrying burglar. A popular villain, she and Batman have exhibited a love/hate relationship over the decades, and she is one of the most widely recognized female comic characters.

Her costume has evolved over time from just a mask to a dress with a hood and ears, and eventually to a full-on sexy catsuit. She is the ultimate Femme Fatale.

Black Canary

The first is Dinah Drake, one of DC's earliest super-heroines. She debuted in Flash Comics #86 on July 31st, 1947. She was a popular pin up character during the 1940s further emphasizing her sex appeal. Her style has evolved over the decades with maintaining her signature leather jacket, fishnets and body suit. Her style can be defined as grungey sexy.

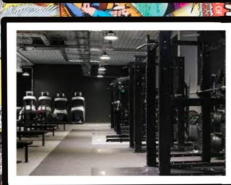

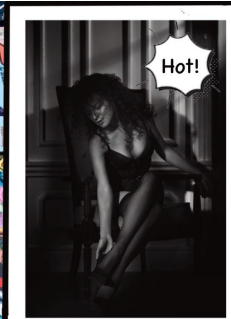

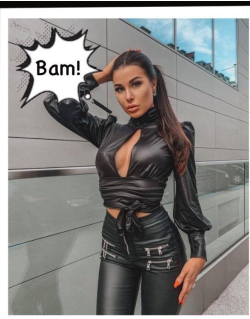

Poison Ivy

Poison Ivy, real name Dr. Pamela Isley, has the power to control all plant life. Having been turned into a plant/human hybrid from an experiment gone wrong.

Her first appearance in Batman #181 (June 1966).

Sexy and seductive Poison Ivy has been the ultimate sex symbol. Her style is sensual, seductive and floral.

Delicate like the plants and flowers she protects.

The target audience for this collection is for someone who is very active in the nightlife. Whether it being at a rager, late night bar hopping or a drive around the city in a motor cycle. Confidence and seduction is key to carry the aesthetic of this collection. Finally the customer is young between the ages of 21 through 35. She takes care of herself, training at the gym frequently and is very fashion conscious. Having a serious strong lead job during the day to being a dangerous woman at night. She isn't already to show a little skin to grasp anyone's attention.
